

The image is a night-time photograph of a modern residential complex. In the foreground, a large, illuminated sculpture of a lion's head, similar to the Merlion in Singapore, is the central focus. The sculpture is lit with vibrant pink and purple lights and is spouting a powerful stream of water that falls into a pool below. The water is illuminated with a bright green light. The background features a tall, multi-story apartment building with a grid-like facade of windows and balconies. To the right, a lower section of the building has a brick facade with vertical white columns and lush greenery growing on the walls. The overall scene is well-lit with a mix of warm and cool tones, creating a sophisticated and modern atmosphere.
